NEWS BRIEFS

Thanksgiving Dinner

Members of the 332nd Expeditionary Services Squadron have extended the Tallil Tavern's dining hours during lunch Thursday. Lunch will be served from 10 a.m. to 2 p.m. The breakfast and dinner meals will remain at the same times.

Potable Water

The Tallil Tent City water supply has been tested and approved for consumptive purposes, such as oral hygiene, food preparation and ice production. Tallilians no longer need to take water bottles into the shower facilities. If you do, do not leave them on the sinks when you are finished — dispose of them properly.

Fire Phones in Tent City

Fire Phones have been strategically positioned throughout tent city. These phones will automatically ring 911 when the handset is lifted, so they can not be used to call anywhere else, on or off base. The phones are labeled "Emergency Phone Only."

Smoking Areas

Tallil Tent City residents are reminded to smoke only in authorized areas. These areas are clearly marked with an approved sign placed by the 332nd ECES Fire Department. While some members have created ad hoc smoking areas — remember, if there is not an official sign at the location, it is not an approved smoking area.

New command chief takes on Tallil

Challenges are plentiful for airmen here, and the wing's new command chief master sergeant has his eyes on four hot items that will affect every airman in the wing.

Chief Master Sgt. Jeffrey Ledoux, the wing's top enlisted member and liaison to the 332nd Air Expeditionary Wing commander, said the dining hall closure, upcoming holidays, each airman's mindset and the status of the base at the end of the rotation are issues he's ready to tackle.

Priority No. 1 is the holiday season. The chief urges deployed airmen to talk with their loved ones back home. The holidays can be stressful, deployment adds to that stress. The chief urges supervisors to be in tune with their subordinates.

Dining hall

The chief said he thinks the Air Force dining hall is a force multiplier for airmen here at Tallil.

"I think the dining hall is not just a place to go eat dinner," he said. "It's a place where we kind of get together ... it gives us an opportunity to sit down and talk (with each other) with combat operations over in May, but there are still bad guys out there who wish to harm coalition troops, the chief said.

no pressure. I am hoping that we don't lose that with the closure of the dining facility."

He said the Army's dining facility is great, and he's sure it will continue to serve great tasting food. Since the Army's dining facility is farther away, "we'll need to ensure we have adequate transportation to get folks back and forth from tent city."

that we'll hear an explosion and then take action. It might be the only thing that happens, it may only happen one time and then that's it for the War zone mentality

The president declared major

"I want a sense of urgency (from our airmen)," the chief said. "I want them to know what it is they're supposed to do if we get a mortar attack. We're not going to get that initial notice that says: 'Alarm red, incoming.' I just don't see that happening, but if it does, I want folks to know what to do. The likely scenario is

It's great to be back at Tallil Air Base after two months of off-station duty at other locations! What's amazing is how many improvements have been made to the quality of life here in that time. There is no doubt that Silver AEF is going to continue to "advance the ball downfield" just as those in Blue AEF did.

As we do so, I want to remind everyone of some important things to remember. At the top of the list is always think Force Protection - never forget you are in a combat zone. Be positive, make this place better every day, don't walk by a problem, and take care of your buddies. Airpower!

night."

He said the wing's senior NCOs should take the lead and educate airmen about the steps the airmen should take when an attack occurs. Commanders and supervisors at all levels should take the threat seriously, he said.

Blue versus Silver

"I think (AEF) Blue has left us sitting pretty well," he said. "They have given us the foundation of the facilities that we need. It's now up to Silver to expand upon those."

Areas the chief sees for improvement are:

The recreation center is not for tall people, he said. Taller people have to stoop over to move around. He'd like to see more comfortable chairs for the troops besides the metal chairs currently in use. The facility is nice, but improvements can be made, he said.

The outdoor movie theater was great, he said. But as the weather turns colder an expanded indoor theater is needed.

The fitness center is a crown jewel for the wing, he said. But to take it to the next level, aerobic classes are starting.

The Harvest Falcon latrines and showers are on the way out. "We're now installing "Cadillac" latrines and showers ... a great quality of life improvement."

An arcade and dance club are also being discussed as another way for Tallilians to let their hair down.

"We're going to lose a gathering place when we close the dining hall, so we have to find a way to capture that in another location," the chief said.

The chief said he also sees that his role is to help foster positive relationships with the other U.S. military services and the coalition forces in and around Tallil.

The chief is deployed here from his job as the 8th Air Force command chief on Barksdale Air Force Base, La.

Safety First

by Lt. Col. Paul Roberts

332nd AEW Safety Office

Some of you may be beginning your tour and some of us are within days of returning home. Here are some simple steps of safety that can make your journey here at Tallil or elsewhere a safer experience.

Operational risk management ORM is a decision-making process to systematically evaluate possible courses of action, identify risks and benefits, and determine the best course of action for any given situation. ORM enables commanders, functional managers, supervisors, and individuals to maximize operational capabilities while limiting all dimensions of risk by applying a simple, systematic process appropriate for all personnel and functions both on and off duty. Appropriate use of ORM increases both an organization's and individual's ability to accomplish the mission.

Personal risk management PRM is a common sense approach used to accomplish any task - whether at home or at work. Take a moment to think things through and identify what the risks are, if they can be reduced, or if the end result is worth taking the risk. Assess, Consider, Take Action—ACT!

Assess the environment for risk

- Be aware of surroundings, duties, and tasks on and off duty
- Analyze what could go wrong—How can I hurt myself?
- What are the chances of something happening?

Consider options to limit risk

- What can you do about it?
- Is it worth the risk to do it?
- Does the risk require elevating decision-making?

Take appropriate action

- Implement risk controls. Take preventive action
- Does your action control the risk? If not start again
- Spread the word! Let others learn from your experience.

Be vigilant and remain safe!

The Commander's Action Line is the direct link to the 332nd AEW Commander, Col. Marke F. Gibson. It's your opportunity to make Tallil Air Base a better place to live, work and play.

First give your chain of command and the appropriate base agencies a chance to solve the problem, but if you don't get a satisfactory answer, send an e-mail to 332AEW.actionline@tlab.aorcentaf.af.mil.

Items of basewide interest may be published in the Tallil Times.

Q: As new people arrive here, they need to be made aware of our laundry issues - leaving laundry and not returning in a timely manner and stopping laundry during the drying cycle and not restarting it. How can we educate the Silver rotation?

A: Tallilians must look out for each other on the battlefield. That mindset should also be applied to everything we do here, including laundry.

The average washer cycle time is 20-25 minutes and the average dryer time is 50 minutes. If you leave the laundry tent, be courteous and return within the required timeframe to remove your clothes. This will free laundry space and prevent other personnel from removing your laundry from the machines.

Each dryer has a light illuminated when in use, so there is no need to open the unit to see. If you open the unit to check, be sure that you restart the cycle by depressing the start button on the dryer. Simply closing the door does not restart the cycle.

Not getting mail? Check the address ...

□ Post office offers tips on sending and receiving mail

Story and photo by
Airman 1st Class
Kara Philp

332nd AEW Public Affairs

As Tallil welcomes the Silver rotation, the Army and Air Force combined Post Office welcomes new mail.

Just like in the states, your address is the most important thing when it comes to mail.

Whether it's coming to, or going from, Tallil Air Base — an incorrect address could cause delays and confusion.

Personnel must ensure folks at home are using the correct mailing address in order to have their mail arrive quickly.

"We here at the post office see every variation of the correct mailing address on a daily basis," said Army Staff Sgt. Michael Milosh, 806th Adjutant General Postal Company post office NCO in charge. "Often times 'deployed specialist', 'K-9', 'B-Flight', etc. are used — this simply leads to misrouted mail throughout the theater and obvious delays in its receipt. Additionally, do not use Tallil AB, Iraq, or names of operations in the address. If your unit is not identified correctly, we have to track you down to determine where to send it, which will delay your letter or package."

According to the Post Office staff, the biggest problem is people using the wrong APO number, which causes mail to wander around the AOR until it finds the right place.

"Unfortunately what usually ends up happening is the item is returned to sender," Milosh said. "Due to the large amount of mail we process daily, problems with addresses are common and we do our best to track you down and get your mail in a timely manner. Sometimes that just isn't possible with what we have to work with."

To ensure fast, trouble-free delivery, post office personnel remind DEMONSTRATION: 332nd Expeditionary Communications Squadron Post Office personnel remind Tallilians of the proper way to address incoming and out going mail.

Tallilians to address letters and packages with Rank/Name, 332 AEW/E (squadron), APO AE 09358.

"The biggest tip I can give people is to simply use the three-line address, anything extra simply slows down the process we have in place to sort mail," Milosh said. "Also, let people back at home know when they are using incorrect information, otherwise it will continue to slow down receipt of your mail or be returned."

The post office staff asks patrons to have patience when sending packages from Tallil.

"We are the only APO for Tallil and Camp Adder, so expect a line if mailing a package," said Tech. Sgt. James King, 332nd Expeditionary Communications Squadron Tallil Post Office postmaster.

The post office also offers free mail.

To qualify for free mail, items must weigh 13 ounces or less and contain correspondence of a personal nature, such as a letter, post card or audio or video tape. However, cameras, film, and bills or business correspondence do not qualify for free mail and must have postage paid on them.

On qualifying items, deployed members can simply write "FREE" in the upper right hand corner where the stamp would go and it will get delivered.

"As an extension of the United States Postal Service, the Tallil Military Post Office's basic function is to bind the service member to their family, friends and business associates through a prompt, reliable and efficient service in any area and under any circumstance," King said. "Even in a combat zone, personnel should be able to send and receive mail, not just for morale purposes, although that is the main reason our customer feedback tells us, but because it is one of the few ways we have to communicate to the world outside of the AOR. Phones and computers can be limited at times, but the mail will always travel."

Mail Tips

▶ Keep personal messages and notes to a minimum on the outside of mail.

▶ Pack items as though you are going to 'kick it off a cliff' to prevent damage to contents.

▶ Liquids, flammables and anything that can melt should not be sent.

▶ Do not send items that cannot be replaced. Carry valuables.

▶ Do NOT seal packages until the post office has a chance to inspect the contents

101st raids lead to capture of criminals

(Editor's note: This release is the culmination of two articles submitted by the 101st Abn. Div (AA) Public Affairs Office.)

MOSUL, IRAQ - Twenty-four personnel suspected of violence against U.S. forces in northern Iraq were captured Nov. 12 in a series of raids by the 101st Airborne Division (Air Assault).

The first incident occurred in the 1st Brigade Combat Team area of operations when an individual who was wanted for questioning was stopped at a traffic control point. He was believed to have information on acts taken against coalition forces.

The second incident occurred when an improvised explosive device exploded, causing minor injuries to two soldiers. Two suspects in the area were immediately detained. They are also believed to be linked with earlier attacks on U.S. forces.

The third incident took place in the 1st BCT area when a joint U.S. and Iraqi border patrol element identified a suspicious vehicle south of Mosul. Individuals in the vehicle fired at the joint patrol. The patrol returned fire, and then searched the vehicle, which contained six individuals and 20 complete rocket propelled grenade systems. All six were detained. There were no U.S. injuries.

The infantrymen patrol the streets 24 hours a day, looking for law-breakers and people intent on causing harm to Soldiers and local citizens, said Staff Sgt. Nathan Smith, squad leader, Company B., 1st Battalion, 187th Infantry Regiment. Soldiers go to mechanic shops and garages looking for people who make car bombs.

Local citizens are also helping the patrolling units net criminals who may be planning terrorist acts. In Mosul a series of overnight raids netted 10 suspects, seven AK-47s, one RPG, two RPG rounds, a pistol, and an assault rifle. The suspects were caught when an Iraqi citizen informed a soldier from the 2nd BCT that individuals were planning an imminent attack on U.S. forces.

Nov. 21, 1970 — Son Tay POW rescue attempt

A task force of Army and Air Force volunteers, led by Col. Arthur "Bull" Simons, executed a daring plan to rescue prisoners of war at the Son Tay prison camp near Hanoi, Vietnam. One helicopter purposely crash-landed inside the camp while other helicopters land just beyond the perimeter. The assault team suffered no deaths and killed at least 50 enemy troops. Sadly, Son Tay's POWs had recently been moved to a new location, so none are rescued — but the raid sent a clear message to North Vietnam to treat American POWs better. The rescue attempt also raised hope among POWs that they are not forgotten.

‘One click, one call’ customer service

□ New system answers members questions on pay, personnel issues

RANDOLPH AIR FORCE BASE, Texas (AFPN) — A one-stop customer service phone number and Web page are up and running, linking several call centers and online resources Air Force people use when managing personnel and pay information.

A single phone number and a companion Web site now make it easier for Air Force active-duty and reserve component military, as well as U.S. appropriated fund civilian employees to find what they need quickly, Air Force Personnel Center officials said.

Customers can find answers to questions by calling toll free (800) 616-3775 or visiting www.afpc.randolph.af.mil/cst. Until now the burden has been on Air Force people to determine which agency handles a particular issue before contacting customer service by phone or on the Web. Customers will be able to access any of the following support services by using the new number and Web site:

— Air Force Contact Center for general military personnel inquiries, including discrimination and sexual harassment concerns and assistance in navigating the virtual military personnel flight application.

— Air Reserve Personnel Center in Denver for Air Force Reserve and Air National Guard personnel inquiries.

— Defense Finance and Accounting Service’s Cleveland Contact Center for Air Force military pay inquiries and assistance with the myPay application.

— AFPC Technical Assistance Center for technical support for applications such as vMPF, assignment management system, AFPC Secure and PC-III.

— AFPC Recruiting Service Center for civilian appropriated fund job opportunities.

— AFPC Benefits and Entitlements Service Team for civilian appropriated-fund benefits and entitlements.

This latest evolution in customer self-service is the product of revolutionary cooperation between different agencies inside and outside of the Air Force, officials said.

“A substantial partnership between military and civilian personnel, Air Force financial services (military pay), and Defense Finance and Accounting Service — years in the making — is making one-stop customer service possible,” said James Short, the Air Force’s deputy assistant secretary for financial operations.

“It goes beyond just a phone number and a Web page,” said Roger Blanchard, assistant deputy chief of staff for personnel. “What our customer service transformation team is beginning to do is actually combine customer service efforts behind the scenes to serve customers faster and more efficiently.”

Several of the linked call centers reside at the personnel center, where leaders have been facilitating the consolidation of Air Force customer-service operations.

“We are making sure that customer service is a lot more than a 1-800 number,” said Maj. Gen. Tom O’Riordan, personnel center commander. “Our focus is making sure we meet the needs of the field, and that we accelerate those changes which make life simpler for the commander and our airmen.”

Customers calling from international locations and hearing-impaired employees should continue to dial the number they currently use to access support for personnel or pay matters, officials said. The new toll-free number should begin accommodating foreign area calls early next year, officials said.

ESVS improves Tallil's facilities, programs

"When you work we work, but when you play we work harder."

by Staff Sgt. Jeffrey Fricke

332nd ESVS

When you deploy, far away from the familiarity and comfort of home, whom do you look to?

The things that we take for granted back home, like a hot nutritious meal, a warm comfortable place to lay our head and get some much-needed sleep, or just a place to relax, where do you find it?

More than 60 airmen, from four locations now make up the Silver rotation of the 332nd ESVS.

Upon arriving here at Tallil, Team Services set out to improve on the foundation laid by their predecessors.

"Leave it better than we found it," the mantra of the 332nd ESVS, is evident in the many programs in place and the planned improvements being worked everyday.

Currently, the Hotspot Recreation Center offers many organized and self-directed programs from card tournaments to weekly bingo games.

Morale phones and computers are available to help troops stay in touch with family and friends at home.

The fitness center, a workout haven for many, has acquired a plethora of fitness equipment.

And the Tallil Tavern provides four hot meals a day to approximately 2,600 troops.

Even with the fine programs in place, there is always room for improvement.

Some of the projects in the works include expanding the fitness center.

The building has already been enlarged to accommodate new equipment and a new aerobics program.

"We've started the ball rolling on the Intramural sports program along with a large variety of special events aimed at fostering esprit de corps and boosting morale here at Tallil AB," said Staff Sgt. Eddie Tacub, 332nd ESVS fitness center NCO in charge and special events director.

The Hotspot is nearing completion of a 300-seat indoor movie theatre that will also double as a location for official functions.

A recently constructed lounge named the 'Sand Box' was opened in response to customer requests for a club-like atmosphere.

"We have relocated equipment rental from a separate facility to the Hotspot, a move that will allow customers a one-stop shop for most recreational needs," said Tech. Sgt. Alicia Skinner, 332nd ESVS recreation center NCO in charge.

The Tallil tavern has worked with vendors to improve the quality of meals offered to patrons.

A full-on Thanksgiving and Christmas dinner are in the works, making it just a little bit more like home.

Another major addition to Tallil will be the arrival of a learning resource center team from McGuire Air Force Base, N.J.

This team will be able to offer assigned personnel the opportunity to pursue their education while stationed here.

Career Development Course and College Level Exam Placement testing will be just a few of the services offered.

The lodging staff of the Freedom Inn is currently working with the civil engineers to have cement floors poured for all the tents.

Nearing completion is the new on-site laundry facility with an expected two-day turnaround on laundered items.

All programs, both in place and projected, are an ongoing effort to enhance the quality of life for all airmen deployed here.

So remember, when you sit down in the Tallil Tavern for that hot meal, play a game of pool at the Hotspot, or just lay your head down to get some sleep, the 332nd ESVS is here for you.

When you work we work, but when you play we work harder.
